

Directors' Company Review

The ARP DIRECTORS' COMPANY REVIEW helps Directors of companies that are experiencing actual or potential financial difficulties reach decisions on the most appropriate courses of action, considering the interests of the company and the statutory duties of its Directors.

Directors contemplating this activity are likely to be concerned with the health of their company, their legal obligations, including their duty of skill and care, and the potential liabilities and personal exposure as a result of their Director status.

The DIRECTORS' COMPANY REVIEW is a comprehensive business review fully tailored to the specific needs of the individual company, focused on the perspective of its Directors. The Review addresses all relevant areas of the company, its business and its future prospects. Rigorous and fact-based, the review identifies the key issues and underlying root causes behind business underperformance, and helps directors identify and implement a course of action that is in the best interests of the company. By seeking professional independent advice, Directors are often able to better protect their company's position, and demonstrate they have the skills and knowledge legally required of them as Directors.

Areas covered normally include:

- Comprehensive financial review
- Marketplace review and company marketplace position; analysis of competitors
- Operations performance analysis
- Management strengths and weaknesses
- Product / service strengths and weaknesses
- Change programme design and implementation
- Corporate governance
- Refinancing options and identification of sources of finance
- Using the recent Enterprise Act and Insolvency Act to protect businesses and directors, and give the company time to establish a successful forward plan
- Specialist reports for shareholders, banks, other stakeholders etc.
- Directors' duties and responsibilities

The DIRECTORS' COMPANY REVIEW is facilitated by ARP in conjunction with the Directors of the company. ARP's multi-disciplinary team has a very wide range of experience in company leadership and strategic consultancy. They work in partnership with a City legal firm specialising in corporate, insolvency and finance law, and a leading accountancy practice. This joint approach provides a comprehensive resource, highly effective for both very successful organisations and those facing uncertain futures. The substantial contacts base promotes identification of innovative solutions and a wide variety of financing options.

ARP Associates are happy to discuss the specifics of any situation with you in complete confidence.
